

Kingsley AikinsFounder of The Networking Institute

Kingsley, an Economics and Politics graduate of Trinity College, Dublin, has lived and worked in six countries in a career in trade and investment, philanthropy, education, diaspora and tourism and has worked for major organisations, governments and countries.

Throughout his extensive experience he has come to appreciate the power of Networking and he sees it as the 'glue' that makes everything happen. As a result he and his colleagues have developed a unique and distinctive approach to Networking training and, through The Networking Institute, they want to share their methodology with a worldwide audience.

